FUND COMMENTARY

Global equities stalled in the fourth quarter, pressured by concerns over a potential trade war and signs that interest rates may remain higher than previously expected. U.S. President-elect Donald Trump's victory sent U.S. stocks (S&P 500 Index) higher but weighed on the markets of major trading partners, such as Europe and China, which could be hit by higher tariffs under the incoming administration.

Political turmoil weighed heavily on markets. Governing coalitions in Germany and France collapsed in December following no-confidence votes against German Chancellor Olaf Scholz and French Prime Minister Michel Barnier. Germany remains in the hands of a caretaker government until February elections. French President Emmanuel Macron tapped Francois Bayrou as prime minister, making him the fourth person to hold that job over the past year.

The fund finished the quarter only slightly behind the MSCI All Country World Index despite a relatively light exposure to the five largest companies (Microsoft, Apple, NVIDIA, Alphabet and Amazon.com) within the reference index.

This demonstrates the breadth of the portfolio as it was able to generate returns from a wider variety of sources. The well-balanced portfolio, in terms of geography, sector, style, theme and characteristics of the underlying companies, is reflective of Capital's view that a greater breadth of equity market leadership could occur over the next cycle. When the market broadens out, the portfolio is well-positioned to potentially benefit from such a shift.

The world's major economies are headed down divergent paths in 2025, and the US' role as the chief driver of global growth figures could expand even further.

With US labour markets healthy, profit growth solid and business investment picking up, the International Monetary Fund (IMF) raised its 2025 forecast for US economic growth to 2.2%. That projection offsets downward revisions for other advanced economies, including the largest economies in Europe.

Strength in the US economy could potentially lift the rest of the world. The IMF is predicting robust economic growth of 6.5% in India as that country benefits from efforts by US companies and others to diversify supply chains. And surging demand for semiconductors and other technology driven by the artificial intelligence boom is bolstering growth in other Asian economies.

As a result, equity market concentration could be about to broaden in the next cycle alongside other factors such as a new economic regime with higher, more volatile inflation and interest rates, plus geopolitical tensions including major structural changes like digital disruption, healthcare innovation, and an industrial boom could drive earnings across a broader range of companies.

The portfolio remains well-balanced by geography, sector, style, theme and characteristic of underlying companies. It is deliberately not positioned for a single outcome or 'type' of short-term market environment. As a result, if and when the market does broaden out, the portfolio is well-positioned to potentially benefit from the shift in equity market leadership.

Portfolio activity was relatively muted during the quarter with minimal changes to company positions and overall portfolio positioning.

The fund has adhered to its policy objective.

It should not be considered in isolation as returns may be impacted by many other factors over time including market returns, the type of CIS, the investment decisions of the investment manager and the TER. TER's and TC's are expressed as a percentage of the daily net asset value of the CIS calculated over a period of three years on an annualised basis. A higher TER does not necessarily imply a poor return, nor does a low TER imply a good return. The current TER may not necessarily be an accurate indication of future TER's. Total Investment Charges (TIC) is a measure of total cost relating to the investment. The TER and TC disclosed are estimates based on our best estimate of the underlying costs. A schedule of fees, charges and maximum commissions are available on request.
